Vacate Not Your Vocation

Taking stock of your vacationing thus far this summer, where you have already been, and where you yet hope to go makes for good reflection during prayer time. Whether you take weekend trips to the Lake Cabin, or a longer road trip, or even an airplane trip to visit family in another part of the country living an intentional life of discipleship means taking the following maxim seriously: "Take your faith with you on vacation." Father Geoffrey A. Brooke, of the diocese of Jefferson City, Missouri recently offered the following reflection on this summer time proverb while offering a new one to consider.

"Don't take a vacation from your vocation!"

These words are often repeated this time of year in seminaries across the country. The warning is to remind seminarians of the need to continue to attend to their formation throughout the summer break. Pope Francis' recent apostolic exhortation, "Gaudete et Exsultate," ("Rejoice and Be Glad") reminds us that the call to holiness is not only for consecrated religious and priests, but for all the faithful. Therefore, this admonition, "Don't take a vacation from your vocation!" applies not only to seminarians, but to everyone. It's a good reminder that all of us can use this time of year.

As the weather warms up, we begin to spend more time outside, relaxing with family and friends, and taking vacation. All of those are good things, but they shouldn't lead to us taking a vacation from our vocation. One classic example of this phenomenon is not going to Mass when we are traveling. One of the most common excuses we hear is: "I didn't know where there was a Catholic church, or what time Mass started." Stop. Think about that statement for a minute. Before stepping out of the house to leave on vacation, we fill up the car with gas, look up flight times and book tickets, hotels, rental cars, trains, tours, restaurants, museums and attractions. Yet, at the same time we can't figure out when and where to go to Mass? If we don't want to take a vacation from our vocation, then Mass should be included in our vacation planning. A bonus: Going to Mass in a different place, culture or even language can be a great opportunity to experience the catholicity, the universal nature, of the church in a concrete way. Going to Mass in a new place can revitalize our faith and appreciation for Eucharist. Depending on where we are traveling, it can also be a chance to see some of the beautiful artistic heritage of the church. If we include Mass in our plans, when we come home from New York, we'll be able to say, "I went to Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral -- much better than just, "I saw St. Patrick's."

Others prefer to spend their vacation not running around, but rather relaxing on the beach or outdoors. We spend time dieting and working out to make sure we are in shape for the summer, but what about our spiritual fitness? When it comes to dieting and exercise, we can follow the strictest of disciplines, but what about our spiritual life? Is our prayer life as disciplined as our diet? It is important to take care of our bodies; it's even more important to make sure we are taking care of our souls. If we neglect the latter, then we end up taking a vacation from our vocation. If we want to be physically fit, we don't wake up and run a marathon on the first day or show up at the gym and start lifting several hundred pounds. We should build up slowly. One of the most common errors of those trying to get in shape is doing too much too soon. The results? Quitting. No progress. Back on the couch. The same risk is present in the spiritual life. If we haven't been praying for years, it's unrealistic to suddenly start going to daily Mass, praying the Liturgy of the Hours, practicing "lectio divina," praying a daily rosary and participating in a Holy Hour. All at once, that's too much. Such a jump will lead to burnout and arriving back at the beginning, no prayer life. If we want to develop our spiritual fitness -- to grow in holiness and our relationship with God -- then we need to build up our prayer life at an appropriate pace.

Some people already have one or more spiritual practices solidly into their spiritual routine. If that's the case, then try adding one more element this summer. Many others rarely take time to pray outside of Mass. For those who find themselves in that reality, there is a way to ease back into spiritual fitness. It's what I like to call the "BC" method, and it only takes four minutes a day.

In the morning take a couple of minutes and ask God two things, first, "God help me to 'be' your presence today." Secondly, "God help me to 'see' you in others today." Then at night, ask God the following questions, "God where did I 'see' you today?" and, "God how was I able to 'be' your presence to others today?" Even more difficult, "God, when did I fail to 'be' your presence today?" I'd say it's as easy as remembering one's ABCs but, granting the play on words, it's even easier to say only "BC." It takes a few minutes a day, and it's a simple practice of beginning a prayer and dialogue with God.

The summer is meant to be a time of relaxation, whether it's traveling far and wide, or spending time outdoors. That rest is a good thing, but let's not turn it into an excuse to take a vacation from our vocation.

Yours in the Sacred Heart of Jesus,

Fr. Bryan J.B. Pedersen

TRUE REFORMERS SAINTS OF THE CATHOLIC REFORMATION

While Martin Luther's interior troubles plunged Europe in to a maelstrom of controversy, confusion, and war, the Basque soldier Inigo Lopez de Loyola set out on an extraordinary interior pilgrimage of grace. Taught directly by God, Ignatius offered the Church a new spirituality of devoted service to Christ and founded a religious order dedicated to evangelization, the Jesuits.

Respect Life Ministry

Our greatest weapon in the fight to end abortion is PRAYER.

Robbinsdale abortion center, 3819 W. Broadway, Robbinsdale Saturday 10:00 a.m., (Rosary & Divine Mercy Chaplet), led by Rev. Thomas Dufner in the parking lot of the Chapel of the Innocent next door to abortuary.

Last Saturday of month 9:00 – 10:00 a.m., Hope Community Church

We encourage you to join in with the above groups or start your own prayer time outside this abortion center. It has been documented that when women coming for an abortion see people praying, they change their minds and don't show up for their appointments.

Prayer is a simple yet powerful act that anyone, young or old, new to the movement or a decades long advocate can participate in. "For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms" Ephesians 6:12.

We can all call upon God to grant us power over the evil of abortion.
